Dear Mr. Brice: This is to tell you how much we appreciate your taking time from your busy schedule to come to Washington to share with us your knowledge of personnel administration. In this ever-changing age, it goes without saying that we cannot be merely satisfied with how we manage our valuable human assets, but rather must constantly strive for new methods that I hope will result in not only greater production but careers that are more interesting and challenging.

Again, I thank you sincerely for visiting with us and my best wishes to you for the future.

Sincerely,
